

Garlic-Butter Roasted Salmon with Beets & Broccoli

Ingredients

- 2 (8.8-ounce) packages refrigerated cooked beets, quartered (about 3 cups)
- 1 medium head broccoli (12 ounces), cut into bite-size pieces (about 4 cups)
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil plus 2 teaspoons, divided
- 1 teaspoon ground pepper, divided
- $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt, divided
- 6 medium cloves garlic, peeled
- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter, at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons chopped fresh tender herbs (such as tarragon, chives and/or flat-leaf parsley), plus more for garnish
- 4 (4-ounce) skinless salmon fillets, patted dry

Directions

1. Preheat oven to 425°F. Toss quartered beets, broccoli pieces, 1 tablespoon oil, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper and $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt on a large, rimmed baking sheet; spread in an even layer. Place peeled garlic cloves on a small piece of foil; drizzle with the remaining 2 teaspoons oil, wrap tightly and place in the center of the vegetable mixture. Roast until the broccoli is tender, about 15 minutes.
2. Combine 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons herbs and $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt in a medium bowl. Carefully unwrap the garlic and transfer it to the bowl. Mash with a fork until well combined. Toss the vegetable mixture with about 2 tablespoons of the garlic-herb butter and spread it back out in an even layer.
3. Nestle 4 salmon fillets among the vegetables. Season with the remaining $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper and $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt. Brush with the remaining garlic-herb butter. Roast until the salmon flakes easily with a fork, 8 to 10 minutes. Garnish with additional herbs, if desired.
